ASSET ALLOCATION

Market View

Risk assets broadly made good ground in the third quarter, as they continued to climb the wall of worry, with seemingly mounting headwinds. Trade war rhetoric remained in the headlines, while investors were also keeping an eye on rising bond yields and the strength of the US dollar. On the positive side, the economic backdrop remained robust, as did the outlook for corporate earnings. US equities were the stand out performer, having their best quarter of performance since 2013 and are head and shoulders above their developed peers over the course of 2018. Japanese equities also had a good quarter, supported by a weaker Yen and confirmation of PM Abe's re-election as leader. Continental European equities were solid, but UK equities finished in negative territory, with the shadow of Brexit continuing to hang over the market. Sterling continued to be at the whim of Brexit chatter, with the currency weakening on the European Union's rejection of PM Theresa Mays Chequers plan. Emerging markets lagged their developed counterparts, with the Asian region dragging the broad index lower. Indian equities had a difficult period, whilst Chinese equities remained under pressure due to trade war rhetoric. The EMEA (Emerging Europe, Middle East and Africa) region was also lower. On the positive side, Latin American equities put in a solid quarter of performance.

As was widely expected, the US central bank raised interest rates from 2% to 2.25%. Rates were raised on the back of an upbeat assessment of the US economy and there are expectations for another rate hike in December. The Bank of England also felt confident enough to raise rates from 0.5% to 0.75%.

In the Eurozone, political tensions again reared their ugly head, as concerns over the Italian budget put forward by its new government spooked markets. Italian bond yields moved higher on the concerns, with the ten year bond yield moving north of 3%. With regards to its own monetary policy, the European Central Bank made no changes, noting that rates would be on hold "at least through the summer of 2019". In terms of fixed income markets, core government bond yields moved higher, with the US ten year yield accelerating to close out the quarter above 3%. UK gilt yields also moved out, which spilled into the UK corporate bond markets making small losses. US high yield again put in another solid quarter of performance, aided by the robustness of the US economy and corporate earnings.

Portfolio Activity

We took the decision to tactically tweak our exposures within the developed equity space. We trimmed our position in Montag and Caldwell US Equity, given the strong run of performance of US growth/momentum stocks. This was recycled into River and Mercantile World Recovery, which has a value bias and exposures to areas of the market which have been relative underperformers in 2018.
